Spring 2013

President's Message -- Spring 2013 As I write this column, I'm just thinking about the glorious area in which we spend our summers, and how varied it is from year to year. Last year, I was paddling in March. This year, the ice didn't go out until April 19, and there have been serious flooding issues. I hope your summer properties haven't been too badly affected by high water levels. On that note, if you are planning on some early spring boating, please be aware that the hazards that are so obvious in the summer months are lurking just below the surface now. I want to thank John Mertl and Randy Craig for running a successful fund-raising initiative in support of our Rock Marker program last year. I also want to thank all of you who responded, as your generosity means that our Rock Marker program will be sustainable for several years to come.

If you haven't had a chance to read the comprehensive Lake Steward report completed a few months ago, please check it out on our web site at <http://www.kahshelake.ca>. Many thanks to our Lake Steward, Ron Pearson, for the many hours of work that went into this document, and into his report on p3-4 of this newsletter.

The KLRA is considering sponsoring First Aid/CPR training (including AED (Advanced External Defibrillator)) for members this summer if there is sufficient interest. In order to gauge whether there is sufficient interest, we have created a survey form on our web site at www.kahshelake.ca. If you have an interest in taking this kind of safety training, please indicate your interest by filling out the on-line survey, or filling out the mail-in survey included in this newsletter.

Because past membership surveys have indicated a high level of interest in safe boating, the KLRA has decided to become involved in the Safe Quiet Waters program. More details are included in another area of this newsletter.

When you arrive at your summer residence this year, you may find the beavers have been at work while you were away. An excellent article on beaver dam removal, and whether it is even feasible or legal, was published in the April 17 issue of "What's Up Muskoka".

To conclude, I wish all of you a safe and rewarding summer season on Kahshe Lake. Bob Reyburn

Will spring ever come?

The heavy rainfall a couple of weeks ago, combined with frozen ground and snow melt, caused extremely high water levels all over Muskoka, leading to serious flooding and the closure of a number of roads some of which affected Kahshe.

If you are planning to go up anytime soon, be aware that the cottage roads may look firm but could be very soft. Go to the Photo Gallery on page 4 for flood pictures.

Nagaya Beach Report

by Gary Baskerville

We have some plans to keep Nagaya Beach on a path to continuous improvement.

The town of Gravenhurst has agreed to provide some garbage containers that are "Critter proof" for the 2013 season. Critter attacks were a major problem for us last year. The raccoons were resourceful and overturned and opened up our garbage pails on many occasions. Thank you to the many volunteers that cleaned these messes up.

The town also provided us with some new signs with Beach rules in 2012. Most people follow the rules. Some ignore them and the worst offenders are the dog owners who allow their dogs on the beach. There are obvious reasons for not allowing dogs where our children play and swim. Please consider their safety. The diving raft will receive a new top, so we need volunteers for this work party, which will be a Saturday morning project in mid June. Please contact Gary asap. The floating safety line will be replaced with a new one.

Wood benches will be repaired and get a fresh coat of stain. We need volunteers for this project as well. We will provide the stain and other supplies.

Nagaya beach is operated by the KLRA for the exclusive use of its members and guests. Part of the beach property (the grassed section) is land deeded to the KLRA. The balance of the land (Old road Allowance) is leased to the KLRA ($1 per year) from the town of Gravenhurst. Beautiful, south facing, gently sloping sand beach is a rare gift in the Muskokas. The KLRA is committed to maintaining and preserving it.

Feeding Ducks Can Be Fun, but please DON'T

(excerpt from an article in the Oakville Beaver)
By Bernie German

Like most families, we introduced our kids to the joys of bird watching by bringing bits of bread crumbs down to the local pond to watch the ducks. Nothing like watching little kids squeal with joy as the ducks come to feed. But, while bread in extreme moderation is not harmful to ducks or birds, it is better to avoid giving them bread at all, since moderation is hard to judge. And who knows how often others have fed the ducks we are feeding?

If you really have to feed the ducks, there are alternatives: grapes cut in half, cracked corn, barley, oats, birdseed or other grains, frozen peas that have been defrosted, or duck feed pellets available from farm supply stores. Ducks also love to eat grass seeds already growing around the pond.

But it is far better not to feed them at all.

When ducks become used to being fed by humans, they no longer search for food sources on their own. This can delay, or even prevent, their migration south. During storms and very cold winter days, (and in the winter generally in cottage country) there are fewer people out feeding the ducks and they are left hungry because humans have become their only source of food.

Just remember, a sufficient amount of food already exists within a lake or river for native waterfowl.

So, for the sake of the lake and the waterfowl . . .
please, DON'T feed the ducks.

LAKE STEWARD REPORT – April 2013

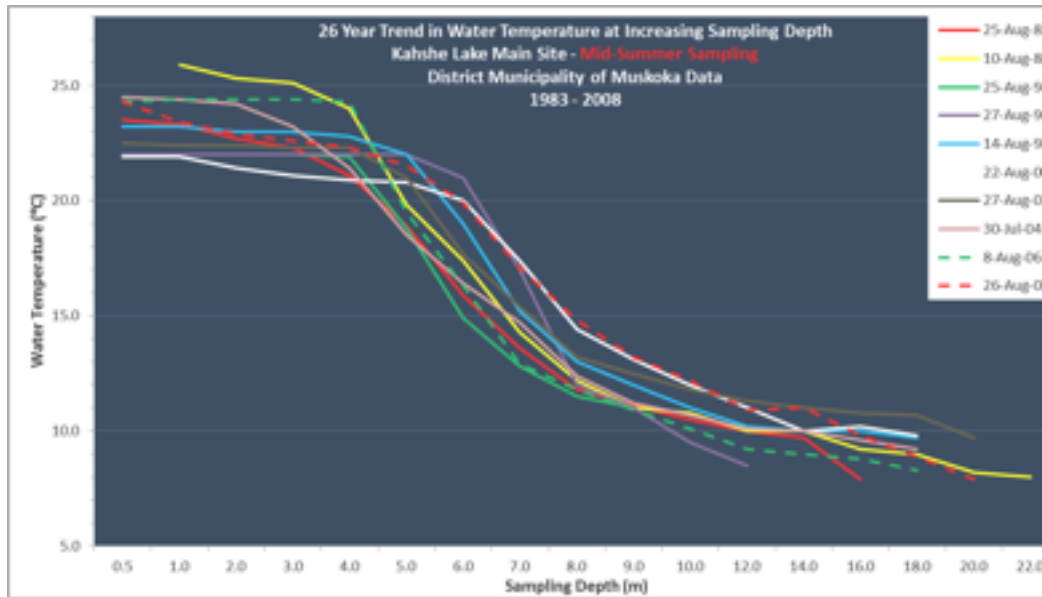

First, it's good to be through the winter, so we can all get back up and enjoy our places on the lake. As many of you know, I completed the 2012 Kakshe Lake Steward Report in late December of last year. Although it's posted on the KLRA web site, I suspect it probably hasn't jumped to the top of the best seller list, so my plan is to present smaller portions of the report in the Krier and then a summary of the entire report at the 2013 Annual Meeting. One of the most interesting findings to date involves changes in the temperature of the lake. While most people would love to have warmer water earlier in the year so we could get in with less 'pain', we're also cognizant of the fact that this may not be good for aquatic species and may promote the growth of unwanted algal blooms. As the District Municipality of Muskoka actually measures the water temperature of Kakshe Lake at increasing depths every two years, I've been able to plot this information to see what's happening.

The first graph compares water temperature at increasing depths for the 24 year period from 1988 to 2011. These samples were taken at the deepest location on the lake near Hens and Chickens and shows how things look in the spring, following thermally driven turn-over (mixing) in the fall and winter. The second chart is from the same location and for the same years, but the temperatures were taken in mid-summer, as the lake starts to stratify thermally.

What does this tell us?

☒ What this appears to indicate is a possible warming trend in the upper 4m of the water column during the spring turnover sampling event.

☒ By mid-summer, this warming trend was not apparent, as water temperatures were fairly similar over the 24 year period from the surface down to the lower, cooler water levels.

To further explore this apparent warming effect, the findings presented in two water quality lectures given by Drs. M. Palmer and S. Somers from the Ministry of the Environment at Dorset were evaluated.

☒ In both presentations, based on statistical analysis of larger sets of Muskoka lake data and on a more intensively monitored group of nine lakes evaluated continuously by the MOE since the mid-1970s, a warming effect has been confirmed in the epilimnion (upper 5 m of the water column), and to a lesser degree in the metalimnion which is the zone below the upper 5 m and above the bottom (hypolimnion) of the lakes. (cont. on p4)

Lake Steward's Report (cont. from p3)

☒ It was also noted In the Palmer study that about 57% of the variance in water temperature was explained by air temperatures. The chart below has been taken directly from the 2012 Palmer presentation.

So I guess we need to be careful what we wish for! On April 27th, I'm attending the 2013 Muskoka Stewardship Conference in Bracebridge on April 27. It is entitled: What are You Watching? and will feature speakers covering many of the environmental issues we're facing on Kahshe Lake. I'll have a report on the main topics in the next Krier.

Volunteers needed

And finally, a heads-up that I'm looking for about a dozen volunteers to help count little critters (worms, mollusks, insects, crustaceans, and mites) in this year's benthic monitoring program. I don't have a date yet, but it will be in August and it will involve a morning of sitting on our deck and counting all kinds of invertebrates in sediment samples from the lake. It's a great learning experience for kids at the senior public or high school age as well as for adults who want to help keep Kahshe Lake healthy. Flip me an e-mail if you would like to participate.

Rock Marker Fund Raising Update, Randy Craig

The KLRA would like to thank all of those who contributed to the 2012 Rock Marker fund raising initiative!

It was a fantastic success with enough funds raised to accomplish the goal of properly marking the lake with professional grade markers.

Our fund raising efforts will continue in 2013 in order to fund future markers, maintenance and upgrades as required.

If you weren't able to make a contribution in 2012, it is not too late! There are a limited number of plaque-mounted posters still available.

Donate $100 and receive a plaque mounted Muskoka/National Geographic #1 in the World poster -- choose from the 2 posters on the left.

Donate $150 and receive both posters

Donate $1,000 and receive both posters as well as a custom designed plaque to celebrate your place or a loved one. →

Donations can be made online at kahshelake.ca/donate or at the Kahshe Lake AGM on Sunday July 7.

If you come across any rock markers adrift because of the high water levels, please contact Barry Elder at bjelder@rogers.com 416 931 8157.

Garbage pickup to continue

Despite a move by the Muskoka District Council to end garbage pick-up at road access cottages, Gravenhurst Town Council voted against the proposal and pick-up will continue as in past years from the first Monday in May, until last Friday in October. As Bob Reyburn, KLRA President, pointed out in a letter thanking Mayor Donaldson for the Town's position, "There are problems with bears and other scavengers even at the current frequency of garbage pickup. I'm appalled that anyone would make a proposal that would exacerbate the problems.

Our membership agrees with Councillor Colhoun that summer residents pay a disproportionate level of property taxes compared to urban property owners, and the only services received are roads and garbage collection."

KLRA Joins Safe Quiet Lakes

Boating safety and the impact that boats have on our lake are major concerns of many of our members as revealed in KLRA surveys over the years and by individual cottagers. The trend to larger displacement vessels, especially wake-boarding boats, with more powerful engines, the increased volume of boat traffic, and some bad boating behavior are impacting our shorelines, our wildlife, our personal safety and our enjoyment of the lake.

To help address these concerns the KLRA has joined Safe Quiet Lakes (www.safequiet.ca), a volunteer organization formed in 2011 dedicated to the development of a culture of safety on our lakes through education, through the enforcement of existing laws in partnership with the OPP and by sponsoring productive dialogues between cottagers to help improve and maintain an enjoyable and safe boating environment in Muskoka and now on Kahshe.

One of the first steps toward addressing specific Kahshe Lake issues on boating safety will be the establishment of a baseline, which will be used to illustrate the degree of success of this program in future years, and will also help us to understand and focus on the more salient issues facing us. This baseline will be based on the results of a survey to be conducted by a professional market research firm. The survey will be available electronically or via hard copy some time in late May.

We hope to have a Safe Quiet Lakes representative available at our AGM on Sunday July 7th to discuss this program in more detail, and to answer your questions. We strongly urge you all to complete this survey and to voice your concerns. If you have any questions regarding the program, please contact:

Editorial

My least favourite task as editor of the Krier is contacting the families of those who have passed away to ask them to put aside their grief briefly in order to write a tribute for the In Memoriam page. This time I understood more personally the loss that friends and neighbours suffer, since Ken Dunphy was an excellent neighbour for the first 15-20 years of our time on Kahshe (we have the "other" John Witbeck lot).

My wife, my 3 daughters and I all have very fond memories of Ken welcoming the girls with cookies whenever they went over to see him, of Ken sitting with our dog and his daughter's dog watching the afternoon roll by, of Ken coming over to help me put in a window or move a fridge, of Ken putting me to shame with his effortless front crawl. And I could go on.....

On a totally different note, I would like to reinstitute the Photo Gallery, and have included a selection of flood pictures in this issue on page 4. Please send your interesting pictures for future issues to:

keithonkahshe@rogers.com

Finally, it is encouraging to see that the Town of Gravenhurst does support seasonal residents from time to time (see Garbage Pick-up, p5). Hopefully this will continue on future issues that impact cottagers. Have a great spring and summer now that winter seems to be over finally.

IN MEMORIAM

Kenneth Rae Dunphy 1914 - 2012

We were always a family who cottaged. But for years we rented or we visited places belonging to other people, often family friends. Of course we should have had our own place --my father believed early-morning lake swims, the j-stroke and splitting wood were at the core of being Canadian and he made sure my sister and I had all those skills. Okay, maybe not splitting wood. Then in the mid-70s, his old friend John Witbeck practically ordered him to buy one of the two lots he had for sale on Deep Bay. My father lost sleep over this but eventually bought the cheaper, scruffier one, threw up a $3,000 prefab meant for fishermen, shoved a couple of stray bricks on top of the concrete block foundations to steady the place and pronounced it a family cottage.

We all loved it. We were a family who believed in the smell of pine, Kahshe's early-morning sparkle and its sudden serenity at sunset, the glittery granite sheltering sharp tough sprays of blueberries in pre-Cambrian crevices, the slam of the screen door, and sunny lunches of open-face tomato and cucumber sandwiches eaten in swimsuits.

The cottage itself was never much and over the years it became even less: A too-small shoddy, airless place with duct tape gripping the door frame, rusting ill-fitting windows that welcomed in any and all biting insects, rotting eaves troughs and precarious wooden steps made dangerous with age. A dock big enough for only a single aluminum lawn chair that he would snap open with one hand and claim for himself. No screen porch, no stone fireplace – not then anyway -- not enough space to sprawl on the floor to work on a puzzle or play extended games of Monopoly. But this is where he was happy. Even when that fire at Denne's burnt our boat to a crisp. Or when beavers attacked – always his tallest, finest trees. When the old waterlogged dock he refused to replace tipped and sent him crashing against the rocks.

He was a professional engineer who travelled the world representing Canada at international standard and code-setting meetings. He was an accomplished bridge player, pianist and, yes, figure skater. (Ice dancing, not the Patrick Chan triple-salchow stuff.) He took up water skiing later in life, but was pretty good at that as well.

But what he was proudest of was the bunkie he built out back in '81. He decided it deserved a certificate of merit which he produced using calligraphy skills he acquired post retirement.

Even when I was well past (all right, decades past) voting age, he would stand on the dock to inspect my crawl stroke. He'd grab the boat keys from the yellow ceramic mug on top of the china cabinet to drive my daughter and friends whenever they wanted to waterski – even if a Jays game was on. He spent 30 summers on Kahshe, chopping wood, slashing errant junipers and swimming from the dock to the eastern rocks at 4:30 p.m. every day -- until he was 89. Even during his last few years and the onslaught of dementia, while living in a wonderful nursing home where he was treated with respect and tenderness, he would brighten – quicken -- when we spoke of Kahshe.

He died Boxing Day at Toronto General Hospital. He was 98. This summer he'll come back to Kahshe when we bury his ashes in a bend in the path beside my mother's.

Jack KEHL 1928 – 2013

Jack spent time on Kahshe Lake over his entire life of 1928 to 2013. He spent many summers with his parents, Papa and Nana Kehl, and his 5 brothers and 1 sister at the "Kehl compound of cottages" that was located on North Kahshe Lake Road between Nagaya beach and the road to the government dock. Jack subsequently had a cottage on Oak Road and finally on South Bay Road. His favourite times were enjoying the company of family and friends at Kahshe Lake. Two of Jack's children (John and Judy Giles) have cottages on the lake and other Kehl relatives including Ross Kehl, Sue Francis, Eric Kehl, Jane Edwards, Margie Schliwa, Geordie Kehl and Ab Kehl are also located on the lake. The smile, warm welcome and good times with Jack will be missed by these and many others.

Wendy KIDDELL 1955 – 2012

Wendy passed away peacefully with her family by her side on Monday, October 1, 2012 at the age of 57 years after a courageous 7 year battle with cancer.

She will be forever remembered and loved by her husband Peter, by her children Kevin and daughter-in-law Erin, Breanne and Louis, by her brothers, sisters-in-law, nephews and nieces, and by her many friends at Kahshe Lake where she spent her early summers with her parents, Arthur and Ricki (Eileen) Kent in the family cottage beside Denne's Marina off Nagaya Drive. There she was close to her god parents, Frank and Ruth Dundas, and met many of her lifelong friends. In the winter, she grew up in Lambeth, Ontario until moving to Calgary in her early 20's.

In 1991, Wendy returned to the family cottage at Kahshe Lake to spend her summers. There she was reunited with Peter Kiddell, who also grew up summering at Kahshe Lake with his parents, Keith and Marion Kiddell. Wendy and Peter were married in 1993. The whole family travelled back from Calgary to her beloved lake, every summer, every Thanksgiving and every May 24th weekend. Wendy continued to enjoy the many joys of cottage life, first at their cottage on the South Road and later on the point of Looney Lagoon in Grant's Bay. She was always the gracious hostess to many dinner parties, pig roasts, Danny B concerts and social gatherings for her family and many friends from all over the lake.

Kahshe Lake held a very special place in her heart and she was always extra proud that her three children, her nephew, Jason and her niece, Krista, were all "4th Generation Kahshe Lakers".

We were all blessed that she could spend her last summer at Kahshe Lake attending the wedding of her son Kevin, to Erin Smith, daughter of Peter and Sue Smith who cottage next door to them in Grant's Bay. Wendy will always be remembered for her beautiful smile, her kindness, thoughtfulness, strength and "never giving up" attitude. She remains an inspiration to all of us.

Chuck (Charles) O'Brien

Kahshe Lake has lost an all time devoted fisherman and hunter, a true outdoors man and a longtime resident of the lake. One would often see Chuck trolling endless hours, day or night around the Hens & Chickens, just one of his favourite fishing areas on the lake. So, it made perfect sense that Chuck, his mom, Bessie, and his sisters would build a cottage on the main channel facing the Hens & Chickens. In the summer, young kids on the lake would love to visit him, knowing they were assured of lots of candy, popsicles and a new fishing lure so they could try to "catch the big one"!

A retired employee of Allied Conveyors, Chuck passed away on Friday November 23, 2012. He will be sadly missed by his family and friends. Chuck was ever gracious, helpful, friendly, loyal and had a smile that would light up any room. This world needs more like him.
